HAIKU and the famous HAIKU poet, Matsuo Basho

はいく まつおばしやう
俳句と松尾芭蕉

A haiku is Japanese poem which consists of 17 syllables with a 5-7-5 syllables structures. In haiku, the most important thing is to "value nature and the seasons. These words that "value nature and the seasons", or represent the seasons, are called "KIGO". Haiku can teach children to be familiar with nature through " KIGO ". For this reason, haiku has become a part of Japanese culture and is now spreading all over the world.

It was in the Edo period (about 400 years ago) that the current form of haiku was created by Matsuo Basho, who was born in 1644 in Iga Ueno. Basho was called the "Haisei" (god of haiku), and there is a haiku hall called "Haisei-den" in Ueno Park, and haiku writing is still popular in Iga.

Matsuo Basho participated actively in Iga until the age of 30 and he moved to Tokyo (former Edo). At the age of 46, he traveled around the Tohoku region for about a year. The collection of haiku he made at that travel is called "Oku no Hosomichi" which is his most famous one. He continued to make haiku as he traveled throughout Japan until his death at the age of 51.

- Here's how to make a haiku.
- 1.) Choose a subject what you want do describe
  - 2.) Choose an appropriate seasonal word "KIGO"
  - 3.) Express your feelings in 17 syllables (5-7-5).

Through the study of haiku, the children of Iga learn to be familiar with nature and to express themselves in Japanese. This summer vacation, please enjoy writing haiku with your family.

Here are a few famous haiku.

Author: Shiki Masaoka
